A serious road traffic collision occurred on Ringfort Road in Derry on Friday, 22 August, involving a scrambler motorbike and two cars. Emergency services, including police units, fire crews, paramedics, and an air ambulance, were called to the scene shortly after the incident was reported.

Police confirmed they were managing the situation and closed Ringfort Road at the entrance to Drummard Park in both directions to allow emergency services to work without obstruction. Motorists were advised to avoid the area, and traffic diversions were introduced to ease congestion on surrounding routes.

According to official reports, the air ambulance attended promptly alongside ground-based medical teams. The aircraft landed nearby to provide specialist assistance where required. At this stage, no official information has been released on the number of people injured or the condition of those involved.

The Police Service of Northern Ireland stated that road closures would remain in place until the collision site was examined in full and cleared of vehicles and debris. Officers confirmed that inquiries into the circumstances of the crash were underway and would continue as part of their road policing operations.

Residents and commuters reported delays due to the closure, with some journeys being redirected through longer alternative routes. Local authorities have advised the public to follow verified updates from police and council channels for accurate information on traffic management and road reopenings.

The scale of the emergency response, particularly the presence of the air ambulance, underscored the seriousness with which the incident was treated. Officials stressed that further details, including any information on injuries or follow-up actions, would be issued once confirmed.

Police have appealed for anyone who witnessed the incident, or who may have relevant dash-cam footage from the area to contact them directly in order to assist with ongoing investigations.
