Attempted Break-In at Dodgers Star Yoshinobu Yamamoto's Hollywood Hills Home

July 31, 2025

— Categories: Crime

An attempted burglary at the Los Angeles residence of Dodgers pitcher Yoshinobu Yamamoto was reported early Wednesday morning, prompting a swift response from local authorities and private security.

According to the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD), the incident occurred around 5 a.m. in the Bird Streets area of the Hollywood Hills, a neighborhood known for its high-end properties and celebrity residents. Officers responded to the scene after receiving a report of an attempted break-in. No injuries were reported, and police confirmed that Yamamoto was not home at the time.

LAPD officials said a glass door on the property was shattered, possibly triggering the private security team's response. The suspects, who apparently did not manage to enter the home, had already fled by the time law enforcement arrived. There have been no arrests, and investigators have not released descriptions of any suspects involved.

The home of the 25-year-old Japanese-born pitcher remains under investigation. Authorities are working with private security and reviewing any available surveillance footage to identify those responsible.

Yamamoto, who joined the Dodgers in a high-profile signing from Japan's Nippon Professional Baseball (NPB), was on the road with his team during the attempted burglary. The Dodgers have been playing an away series against the Cincinnati Reds and are set to finish the three-game matchup on Wednesday evening. If they secure another win, the team is currently positioned to sweep the series.

Although no property was taken and no one was harmed, the incident adds to growing concerns about security in Los Angeles, particularly in affluent neighborhoods that have increasingly become targets for such crimes. Recent reports have highlighted similar incidents involving high-profile figures across the city, raising questions about safety measures and deterrence in these areas.

Police did not indicate whether this attempted break-in was a targeted attack on the Dodgers pitcher or a random act. Still, the fact that the suspects fled before entering the home suggests the presence of security may have deterred them.

As of Wednesday afternoon, representatives for Yamamoto and the Los Angeles Dodgers had not issued public statements regarding the incident. The LAPD continues to urge residents in the area to remain vigilant and report any suspicious activity immediately.

Yamamoto, widely seen as a rising star in Major League Baseball (MLB), has quickly gained attention for his performance on the mound. The incident at his home reminds us that even well-known athletes are not immune to the growing trend of attempted home burglaries in Southern California.

The LAPD is encouraging anyone with information about the attempted break-in to contact their local station or call Crime Stoppers anonymously.
