Located in one of Kew's most desirable pockets, this beautifully renovated Deco House masterfully combines the classic art deco aesthetic with contemporary living. Delivered by Mihaly Slocombe Architects and built by Basis Builders, the home stands out for its sophisticated design and quality craftsmanship.

The vendors highlight architect Warwick's pivotal role in shaping the project. "Warwick helped us turn our vision into a tangible reality," they say, noting how the design features

Scandinavian (Scandi) minimalist influences, exposed brickwork left raw for character, and smooth curves that seamlessly unify the home's interior and exterior.

A finalist on the well-regarded show Grand Designs Australia (GDA), the property boasts striking curved marine ply ceilings, a signature kitchen island bench, and curved elements on the outdoor pergola. These details underscore the attention to craftsmanship throughout the home.

Inside, the blend of exposed brick, polished concrete floors, bespoke marble benchtops, and rich timber flooring is complemented by high ceilings and an open-plan layout. The overall style pays tribute to art deco's charm while delivering warmth and livability suited for modern families.

The vendors point out the dining and kitchen area as a highlight, a spacious, inviting environment ideal for family gatherings. "The timber finishes create a calm and cohesive palette," they add, emphasizing the home's balanced aesthetic.

Having purchased the property eight years ago and recently renovated it, the vendors say the house has been central to their family's memories. "It's where we sheltered during COVID-19 and watched our son grow, from crawling to walking upstairs," they reflect.

For buyers seeking a distinctive, architecturally refined home in a sought-after location, this Kew property offers a rare combination of timeless design and contemporary comfort, a place to create lasting memories in style.
