Arctic Pablo Coin (APC), a new meme-token project on Binance Smart Chain, is currently in a late presale phase marketed as “Stage 36 – Horizon Haven,” with tokens offered at US$0.0008. The project describes APC as a meme-inspired token with games, contests, and rewards, and lists a total supply of 221.2 billion APC.

Several crypto trade outlets report that the presale has raised “over US$3.39 million.” These reports also repeat promotional claims about potential percentage returns at a future exchange listing. OpenVoiceNews AUSTRALIA has not independently verified the raised total or any projected pricing.

Coverage on crypto news sites and community posts also asserts that APC features periodic token “burns,” a 66% staking APY during presale, and a multi-stage structure culminating at Stage 36. These features are described in promotional material and community channels; they should be treated as project claims unless confirmed on-chain or in audited documentation.

The project itself states APC runs on Binance Smart Chain and outlines tokenomics and ecosystem plans. As with any presale, prospective buyers would need to rely on the project’s disclosures and blockchain records for verification. Independent contract audits, team identities, and escrow or vesting details were not located in available sources and should be checked directly by readers before making financial decisions.

Market Context (Related Tokens, Not Endorsements)

General commentary on meme coins and high projected returns is common across crypto media. For context only, unrelated meme tokens such as “Fartcoin” and “Snek” are listed on price-tracking sites, but pricing and volume for such assets are volatile and change frequently. Readers should consult real-time market data rather than static figures in articles.

What’s Verified vs. Promotional

- Verified from the project: chain (BSC), branding and positioning, and stated supply.
- Reported by third-party crypto sites: claims of around US$3.39 million raised, Stage 36 token price of US$0.0008, token burns, and 66% staking APY. These are promotional claims and should be independently verified on-chain and through audits before being treated as fact.

Editorial Note for Readers

Presales are speculative. Claims about future listing prices or returns are marketing projections, not guarantees. Anyone considering participation should review the contract address on a block explorer, check for third-party audits, confirm burn transactions on-chain, and understand vesting or lock-up terms if applicable.
