The REX-Osprey SOL spot exchange-traded fund (ETF) recorded a substantial net inflow of $12.6 million on July 22, according to data from Farside Investors. This latest injection brings the ETF's cumulative net inflow to $105.4 million since its market debut.

The continued inflows reflect growing investor confidence in Solana (SOL)-based investment vehicles and broader institutional interest in digital asset exposure through regulated channels. The REX-Osprey SOL ETF has steadily attracted capital since launch, marking it as one of the stronger performers in the digital asset ETF space.

Solana, known for its high-speed transactions and scalable blockchain infrastructure, remains a favored platform for decentralized applications and DeFi projects. As such, investment products tied to SOL have garnered significant attention amid increased adoption and price activity.

Analysts view the latest figures as a sign of sustained momentum in digital asset investment flows, particularly in altcoin-focused ETFs. The REX-Osprey SOL ETF's rising net inflow underscores institutional appetite for exposure beyond Bitcoin and Ethereum.
